Nacine Bride-Elect Feted

One of the prettiest shows of the season was held in Nacine on Tuesday evening, June 18th, when Miss Eileen Dawson, bride-elect, was honored by thirty friends. Miss Dawson was escorted into a beautifully decorated room that was radiant with pink and white streamers and flowers. The ladies greeted her by singing "She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Numerous merry games were played, and much of longer than the evening was well spent. When refreshments were served, the guests gathered around a long table laden with food, which was catered by a white table dressed old bride and groom of the same name, iris and columbine. Strawberry shortcake, dairy, dairy sandwiches, and chocolate bakings headed the menu. The bride and groom were seated at the head of the table, and the guests were seated around them. A Fifth Column Menace In the Weed War

In addition to the common annual, biennial and perennial weeds that have been accustomed to fighting for a number of years, are now found the ordinary annual weeds of cultivation, since they spread more rapidly from the root-stocks than they do from seed. These weeds are characterized by having extensive root-stocks, which allow them to subvert the ordinary methods of cultivation, since they spread more rapidly from the root-stocks than they do from seed. In the past numerous new weeds have been introduced, and many false prophesies have been made that the weeds they would bring to agriculture. The farmers, however, have been happy to find that ultimately there are a reasonable effective method of control. period alone in its present infested state is yielding them no profit. To say that these weeds are difficult to control is to put it mildly. No known method will destroy them in one year with the possible exception of the use of very expensive herbicide, carbon bisulphide. Successful results have been obtained by two years of very intensive cultivation or by the use of chemicals during two seasons. Farmers are urged to play safe and not allowing any weeds whatever to go to seed on or near their farms. If weeds appear, with which they are not familiar they should take steps to find out what they are and what the approved methods of control. The Experimental Station will promptly identify any samples which are sent in and will gladly advise as to the best known methods of control. Local weed inspectors and the Field Crops Branch, Provincial Department of Agriculture, are also available to help the farmers with this very important problem.

Similar study on animals by Dr. J. M. Collins at the University of Cincinnati, showed that the group of animals kept at 60 degrees was smaller than another kept at 70 degrees.

Dr. Mills showed charts recording a recurring temperature of about 1,000 years, the temperature rising to a maximum during the summer months and falling to a minimum during the winter months. A new type of test started about 10 years ago, and it was found that if his conclusions were correct, "small statue" is a condition that is caused by a low temperature.

A doctor asked for an explanation why a recent survey showed that the temperature of the body was lower than it had been in the past. Dr. Mills said he believed this was due to a condition known as "smaller statue," which is caused by a low temperature.
